

Skills for Life Strategic Masterclass

Please book your space now!

What is it?

- A one-day workshop for those who want to take a strategic approach to basic skills weaknesses in their health-related workplace.
- Weaknesses in Maths, English, ICT and ESOL create a barrier into work and through careers, for those on apprenticeships up to senior managers. Come and learn what is being done in other workplaces to tackle these issues, what resources are available to you and network with sector colleagues to build a network of support.

Who is it aimed at?

- This is for employees who are interested in influencing their workplace to take a departmental or organisational approach to these issues.
- We want you to leave the day with ideas, inspiration and contacts that will help you tackle this issue strategically.

What did people say who have already attended a masterclass?

- Over 50% of people found the day most useful to share ideas, make contacts and learn about available resources.
- “I learned a lot via networking with fellow learners”
- “It was great to find tools that we can use to improve what we already have”
